Why Oscars?

Oscars are about giving a 'light lift' to communication with people working remotely. They are deliberately funny and non-prescriptive, and yet under each is a serious theme. Humour unites people, especially in difficult times and by being enigmatic, Oscars do not coerce and are therefore respectful to their audience. They can stand alone, or dovetail with your key messages.

How to use

There are many possible applications:

- A light lift to routine weekly comms
- A friendly tee-up to an educational message e.g. on good home working practices
- A quick icebreaker before sharing important policies / rules
- Freshen up a senior leader employee briefing or presentation
- A provocation for discussion in on-line training
- A gentle way into a delicate conversation – e.g. discussing mental health issues
- A safety share at the start of any on-line meeting
- A purposeful message of support or resources for employees in isolation

Adapted to for your organisation

The standard Oscar will have your own logos and chosen key messages at the end. A bespoke version can have a tailored voiceover and add a senior leader video message and/or slideshow. A further option is create-for-purpose and so have videos created on your own chosen themes. For extra engagement, employees can vote on favourites or run a competition to come up with Oscar ideas, for which a special video can be made.

Try for free

Oscars can be made available for a sample test inside the organisation. Please ask for information.

Internal use only

Once purchased, Oscars are free to use for internal purposes only. Oscars cannot be used for generating revenue or be given to customer or partner organisations. If you would like to share them outside your organisation, please get in touch.

Public domain

A limited number of Oscars are being released on LinkedIn to spread the word. These are available for personalising to your organisation, or you can specify videos to buy which are not in the public domain.

Tech

Sample Oscars are hosted on the People Deliver Projects YouTube channel - Password provided. Purchased Oscars can be accessed in the same way, or the source file can be provided.
